

1000+ Facebook Ad Examples from Travel and Tourism Brands

Who is this eBook for?

- Travel marketers who want to stay ahead of the curve with Facebook ads.
- Agencies that work with travel brands to develop digital ads.
- Marketers at State-level DMOs, Tour Operators, and Resorts and Hotels who want to understand what their peers are doing.

How are travel and tourism brands using Facebook ads to attract travelers?

If you've ever wondered what sort of Facebook ads other travel and tourism brands are running, we're happy to tell you this: we've done the research, we've done the analysis, and we're presenting our findings to you in this eBook!

In the last week of June 2019, we used Facebook's Page Transparency Tool to find all the active Facebook ads that over 150 travel and tourism brands were running during that time¹. From our research, we were able to extract patterns and trends, and generate insights on how DMOs, Tour Operators and Resorts and Hotels are using this digital ad channel.

Browse through the ads your own brand is using, and get a better understanding of how your peers are serving up ads. See on average how many travel and tourism brands are using user-generated content, how many use video, what calls-to-action are most popular, and more.

Whether you're looking for new ways to use Facebook ads, or just want to stay informed with how the rest of the industry is approaching paid social, we hope this collection of ad campaigns and insights will help you think outside-the-box to get those travelers clicking! Enjoy the read.

Snapshot of ads types and formats

First, let's take a quick look at the different types of ads you can create with Facebook, and how they differ.

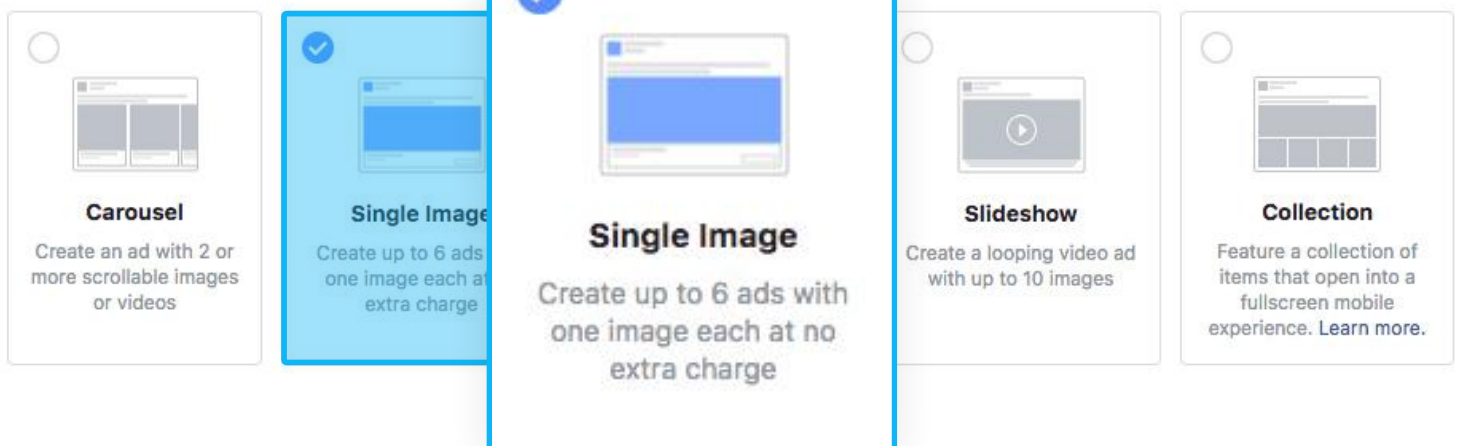

Single Image

This is by far the most popular Facebook ad type travel brands are using. The single image ad is just that - your message coupled with an image below.

- A great place to put the spotlight on a photo that your own locals or existing travelers have taken in your destination.
- Most organizations put calls-to-action onto their images.

Format

Choose how you'd like your ad to look.

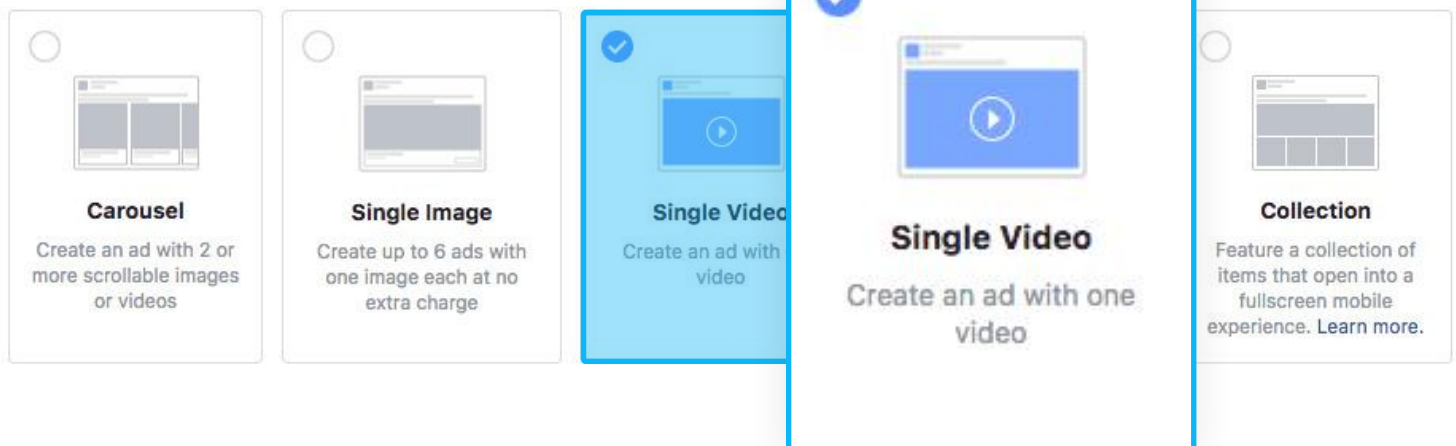

Video

Video ads are great for capturing short bursts of attention, and if you have something that is better conveyed with motion.

- Best used for content that can be conveyed without sound, like food or action activity videos (versus videos featuring a host talking to the camera).
- Captions are recommended as most people view videos in their feed without sound.
- On mobile, Facebook recommends keeping videos 15 seconds or less.
- Keep frames moving fast, so you can keep someone's attention longer by showing them more in less time.

Format

Choose how you'd like your ad to look.

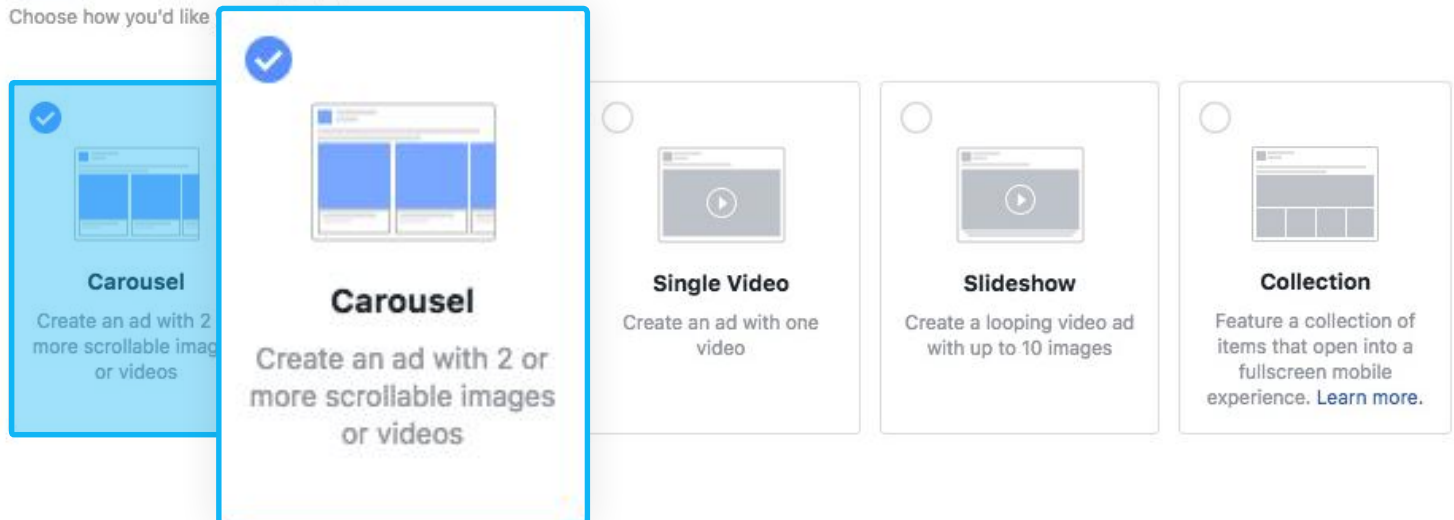

Carousel

If you need to show multiple items at once, carousel ads are your best bet. Showcase up to 10 images or videos, allowing your audience to swipe and browse through.

- You can choose to have Facebook optimize the order of your visuals, based on engagement.
- Many DMOs break up a panorama image into multiple squares.
- Most DMOs make their last image in their carousel a CTA.

Format

Choose how you'd like

The image shows a selection screen for Facebook ad formats. It features five cards, each with a checkmark icon in the top left corner. The first card, 'Carousel', is highlighted with a blue border and a blue checkmark. The other four cards are 'Single Video', 'Slideshow', and 'Collection', each with a grey checkmark. The 'Carousel' card has a blue header and a blue body, while the others have grey headers and bodies. Each card contains a thumbnail image of the ad format, a title, and a description.

Format	Description
Carousel	Create an ad with 2 or more scrollable images or videos
Single Video	Create an ad with one video
Slideshow	Create a looping video ad with up to 10 images
Collection	Feature a collection of items that open into a fullscreen mobile experience. Learn more.

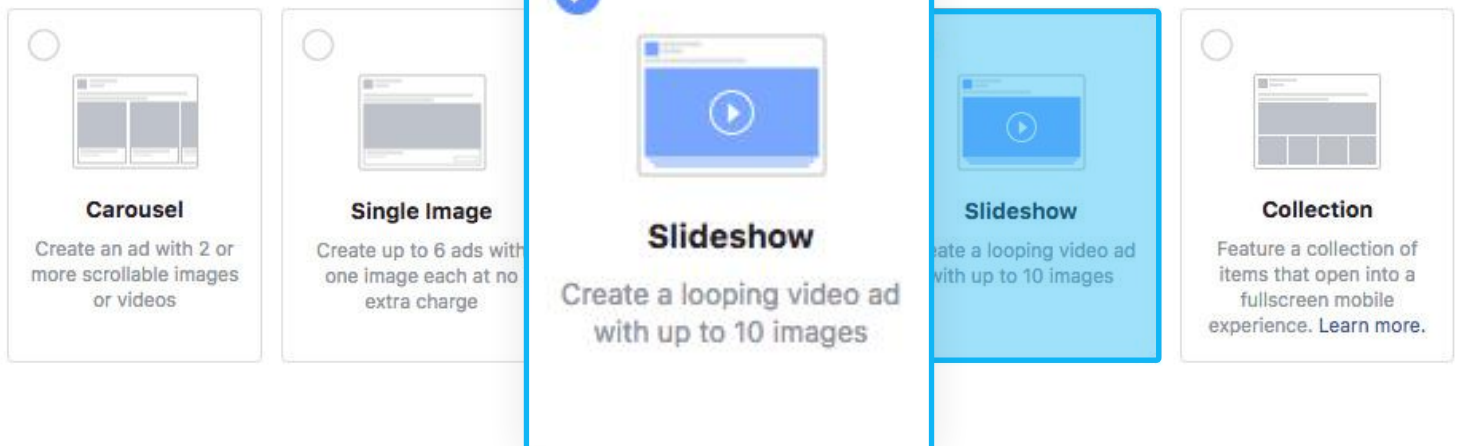

Slideshow

Don't have time to put a video together? Upload 3 to 10 images and Facebook will create a looping video together in slideshow format.

- If you want to recreate the effect of a video ad without the work, this is your best bet.
- Upload pictures with captions, and you can recreate the typical video experience people get on Facebook.

Format

Choose how you'd like your ad to look.

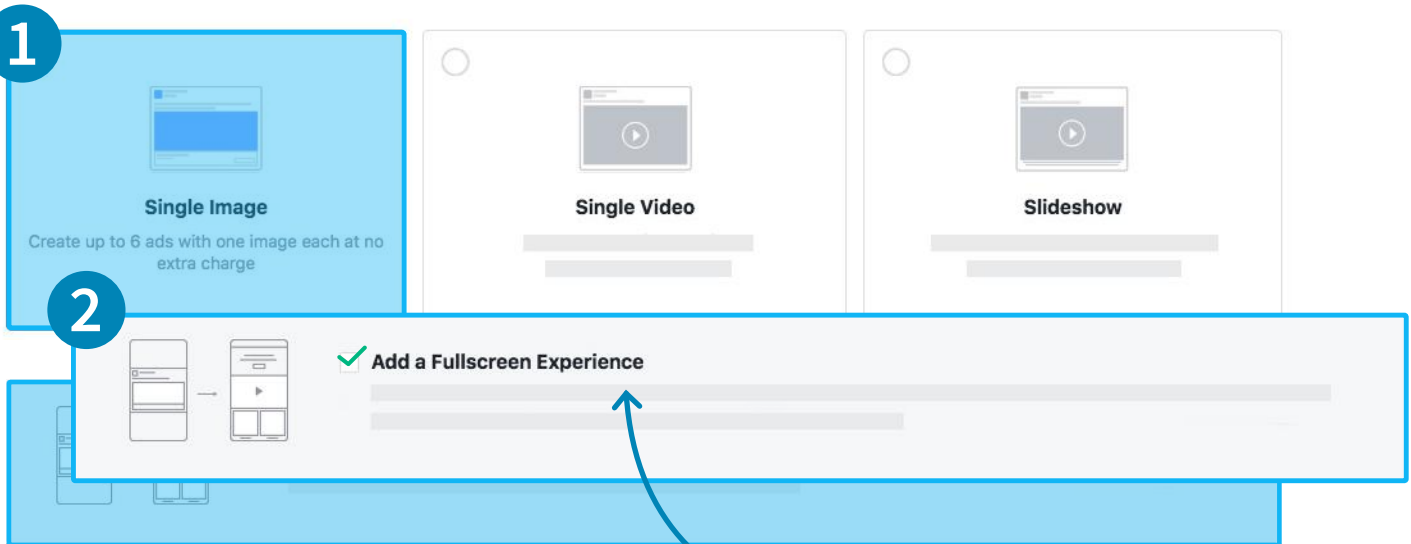

Canvas

Optimized for mobile, Canvas ads create a full-screen interactive ad experience for your audience. Within a Canvas ad, you can stitch together a variety of videos, photos, and add links and CTAs in multiple places. Viewers navigate through your ad by swiping up, down, left and/or right.

- Canvas ads are best for showcasing those places that are “best experienced in person,” like sweeping views at the top of a mountain, or to take someone directly to your best ski slopes
- Load time is near instant.
- Facebook offers ready-to-use templates.

Format

Choose how you'd like your ad to look.

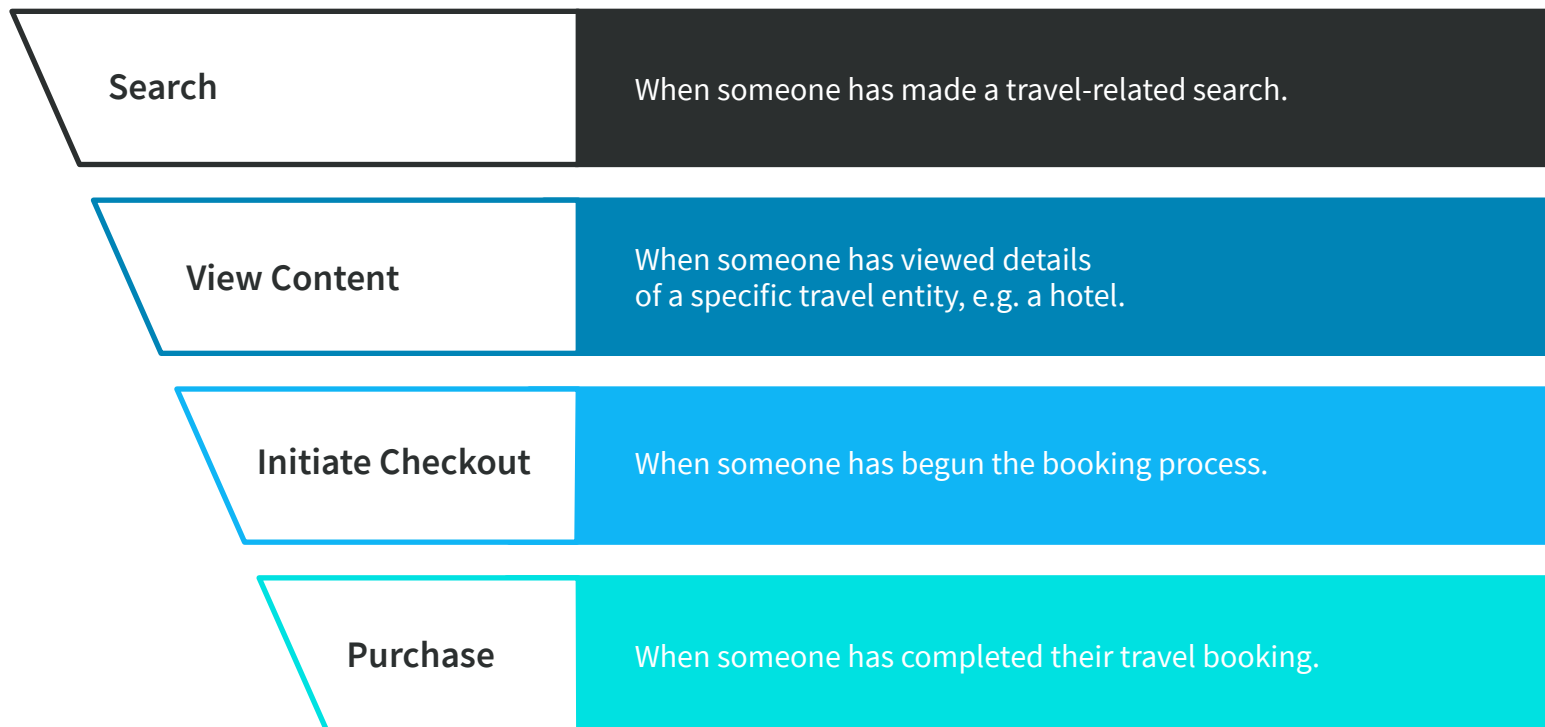

Create a canvas ad with images by selecting the “Full Experience”.

Travel specific Facebook ad products

Dynamic Ads for Travel

Dynamic Ads for Travel is Facebook's native solution for retargeting, where much of the targeting is automated, and set-up is minimum.

You upload a catalog of your products and offerings, create a template for your ads, and Facebook will dynamically insert images and details from the catalog to travelers, based on their actions:

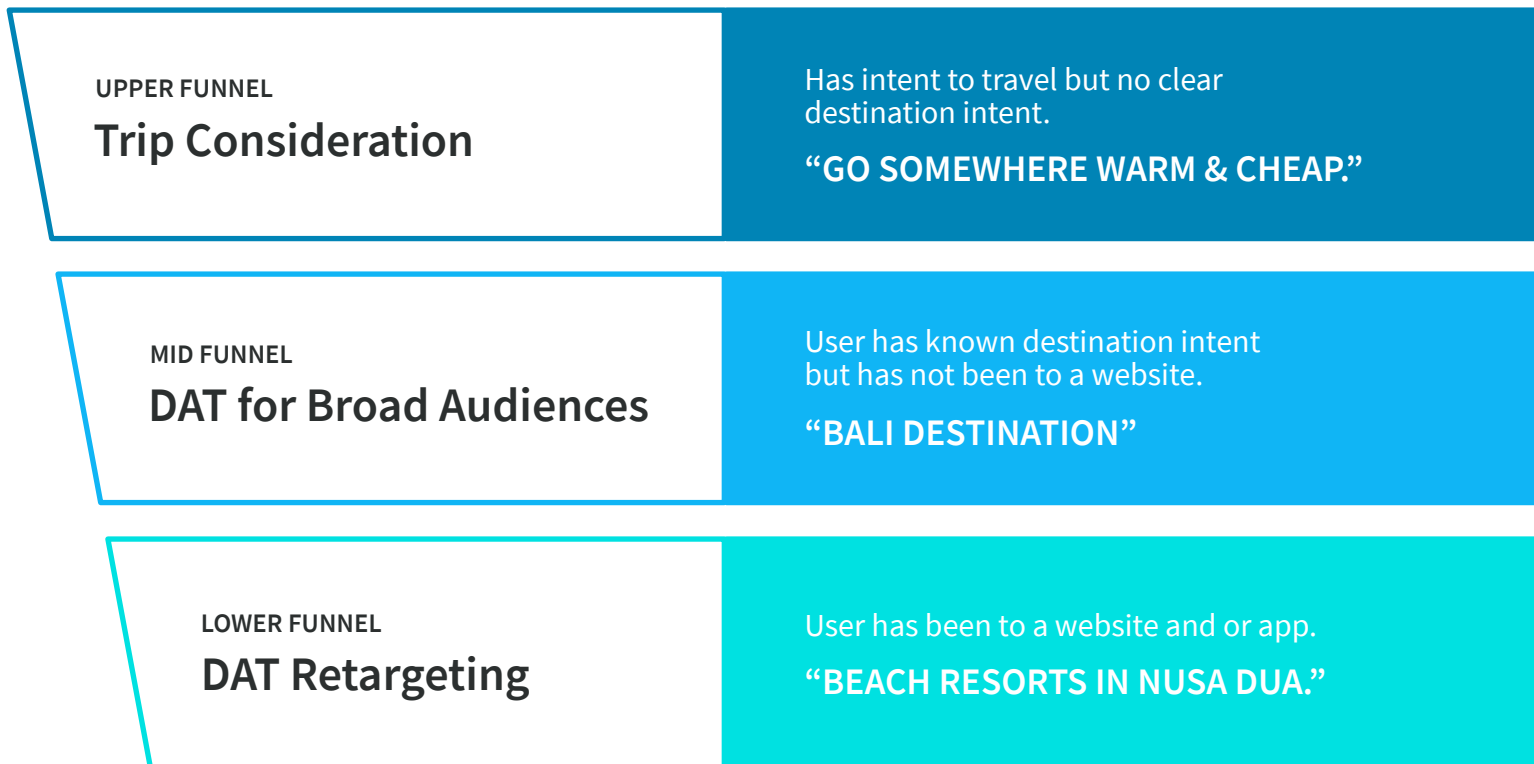

Trip Consideration

Trip Consideration targets travelers... before they've even decided where they want to travel. For example, these will target Facebook users who browse several travel sites but only don't go any further than the homepage of those sites.

It targets travelers the stage before Dynamic Ads for Travel comes into play.

That means, the biggest advantage of Trip Consideration is getting to be the first destination on someone's mind. While a traveler is still deciding where to go, you can serve them an ad with an offer they can't pass up, and solidify your place as their next vacation spot.

Analysis: how are travel and tourism brands using Facebook ads?

We looked at over 1000 Facebook ads from travel and tourism brands targeting the United States to bring you these insights. We analyzed every state DMO actively running ads at the time of the study. For other sectors, we chose a random sample from our internal database.

Here are the trends and patterns we found as to how State DMOs, Tour Operators, and Resorts and Hotels are using Facebook ads to speak to travelers.

The average number of active ads per travel sector:

State DMOs:

22

Tour Operators:

15

Resorts and Hotels:

14

Similar to last year, no State DMOs were serving ads that mentioned a deal or offer.

20%

of Resort and Hotel ads used UGC—the highest of all three sectors.

The number of travel brands not running ads at the time of our study (last week of June 2019):

State DMOs:

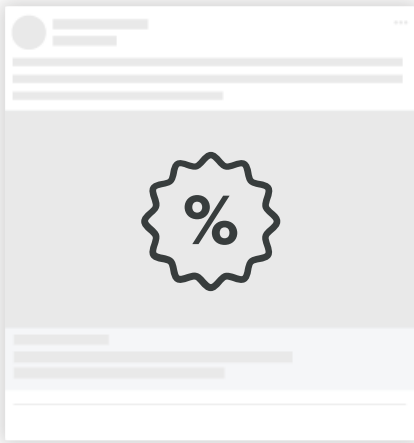

8

Tour Operators:

34

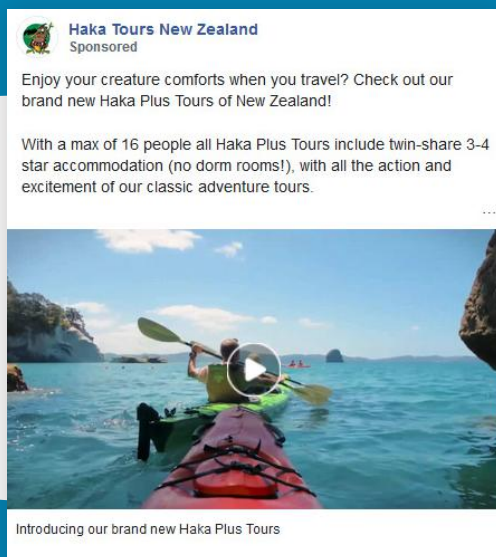

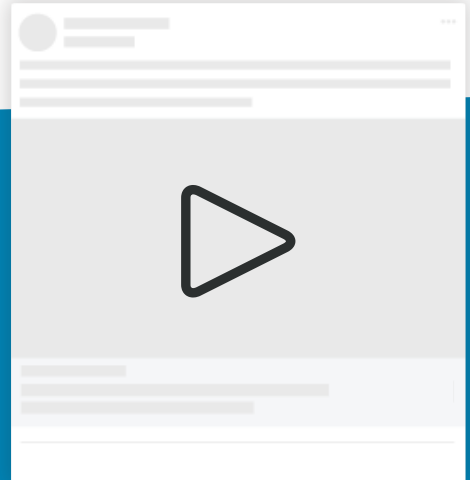

Resorts and Hotels:

15

Almost half of Resort and Hotel ads used “Sale/Deal” style CTAs—also the highest of all three sectors.

Tour Operators were the highest users of videos in their ads, at 37%.

Almost half of Tour Operator ads featured outdoor action in their visuals.

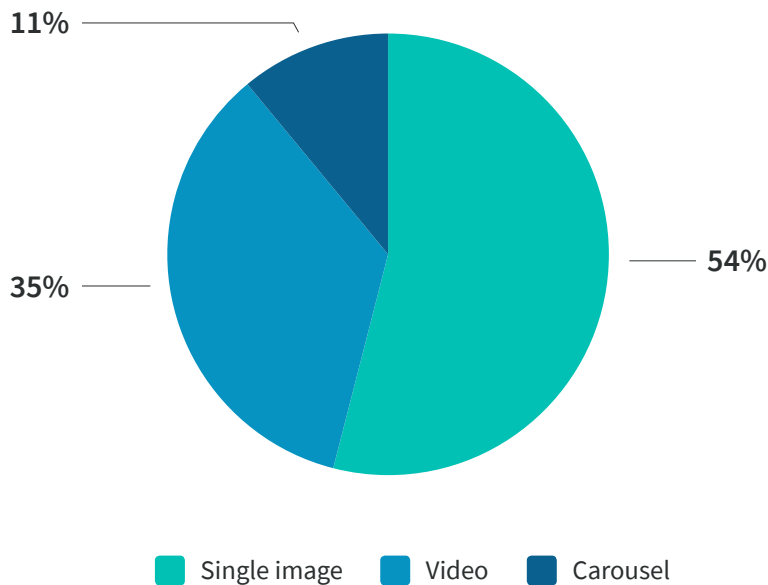

For both State DMOs and Tour Operators,

2/3 of visual ads featured people.

For Resorts and Hotels, only

1/2 of visual ads featured people.

Analysis: How are State DMOs using Facebook Ads?

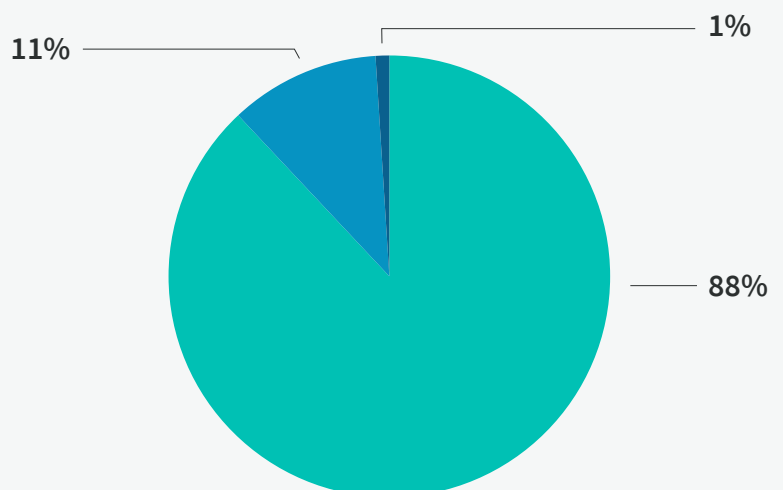

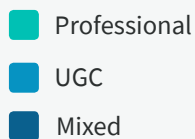

What ad formats are State DMOs using?

Single image ads are still the most common type of Facebook ad. Compared to last year, video use was up by 15%, while the single image format was down by 13%. Carousel ads remained the same, at 11%.

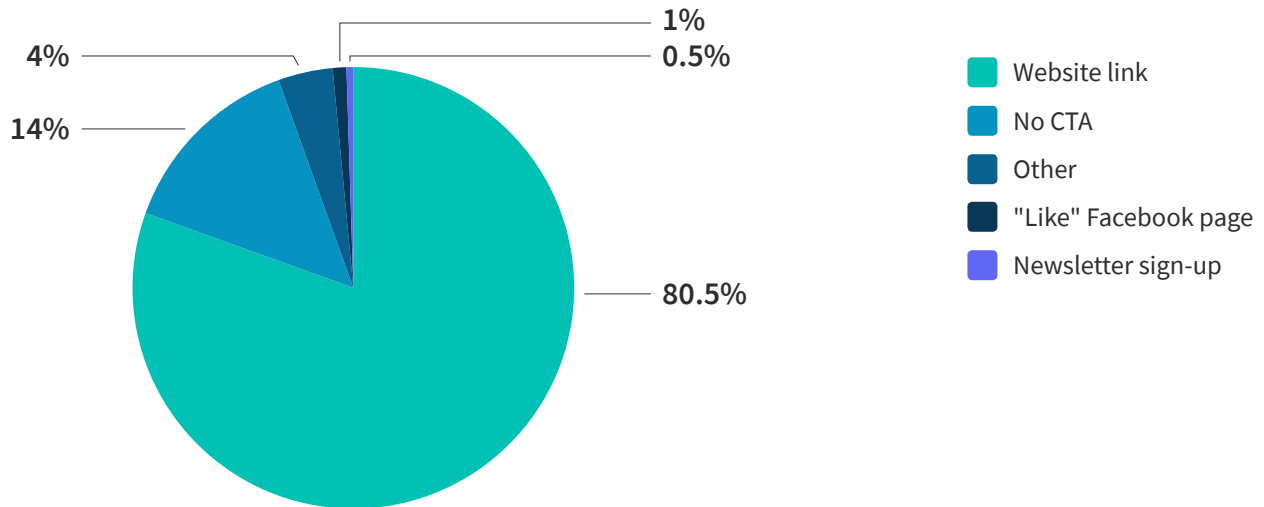

How many State DMO ads use user-generated content (UGC)?

Professional imagery is still the go-to choice for State DMOs. However, UGC use has more than doubled, up from 5% in 2018, to 11% this year.

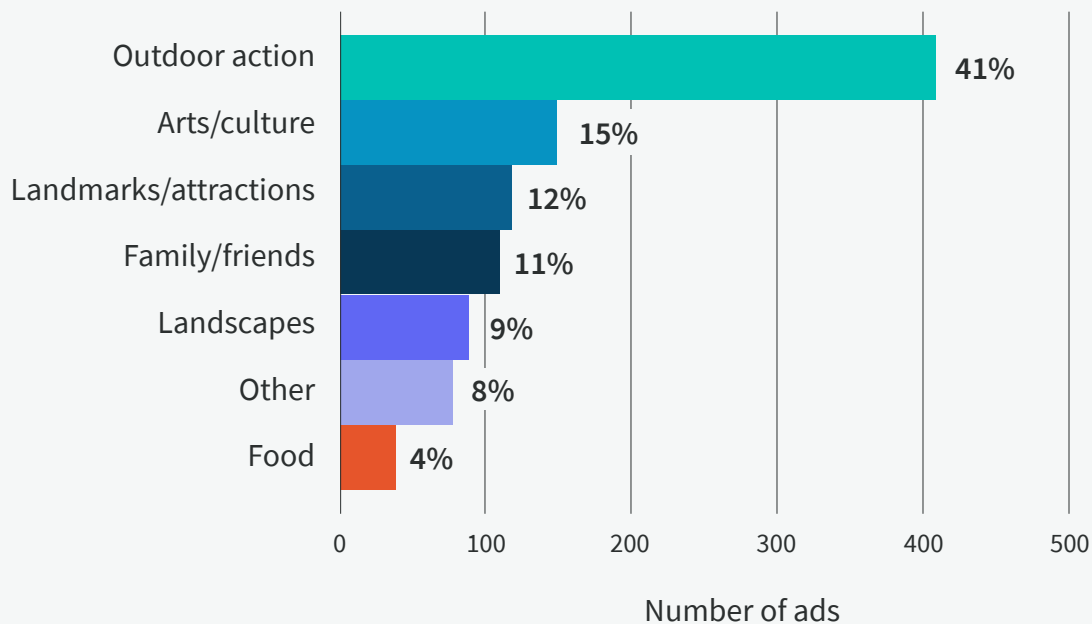

What CTAs were most common?

Similar to our findings last year, most ads drove visitors back to their websites. The most common CTA for doing this was a “Learn More” button—either promoting specific experiences such as the region’s golf courses or vineyards, or the destination in general.

Which themes for visuals were the most popular?

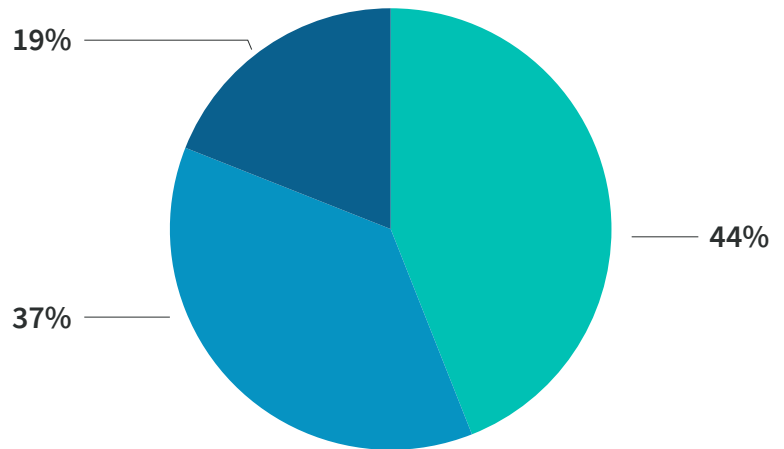

Analysis: How are Tour Operators using Facebook Ads?

What ad formats are Tour Operators using?

Though single image ads are still the preferred format, video came in at a close second.

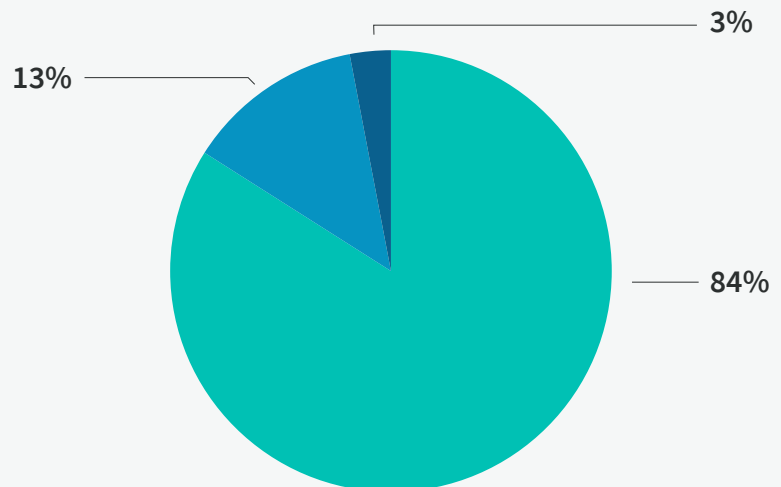

Single image Video Carousel

How many Tour Operator ads use UGC?

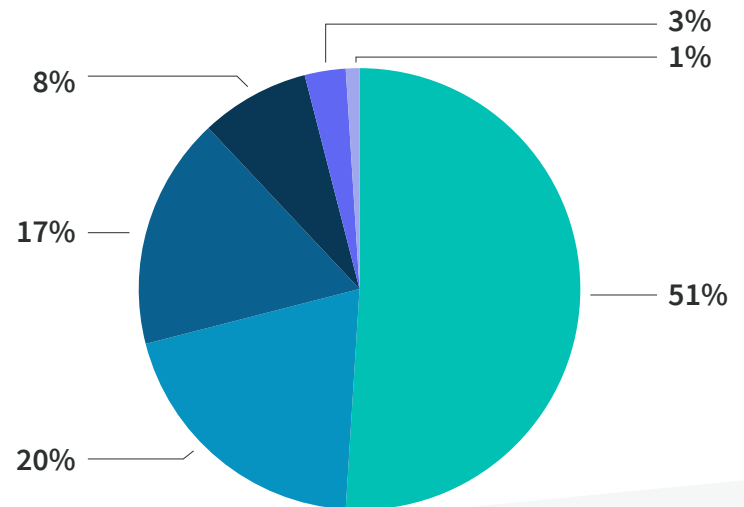

Similar to State DMOs, the vast majority of Tour Operators use only professional imagery in their ads.

Professional UGC Mixed

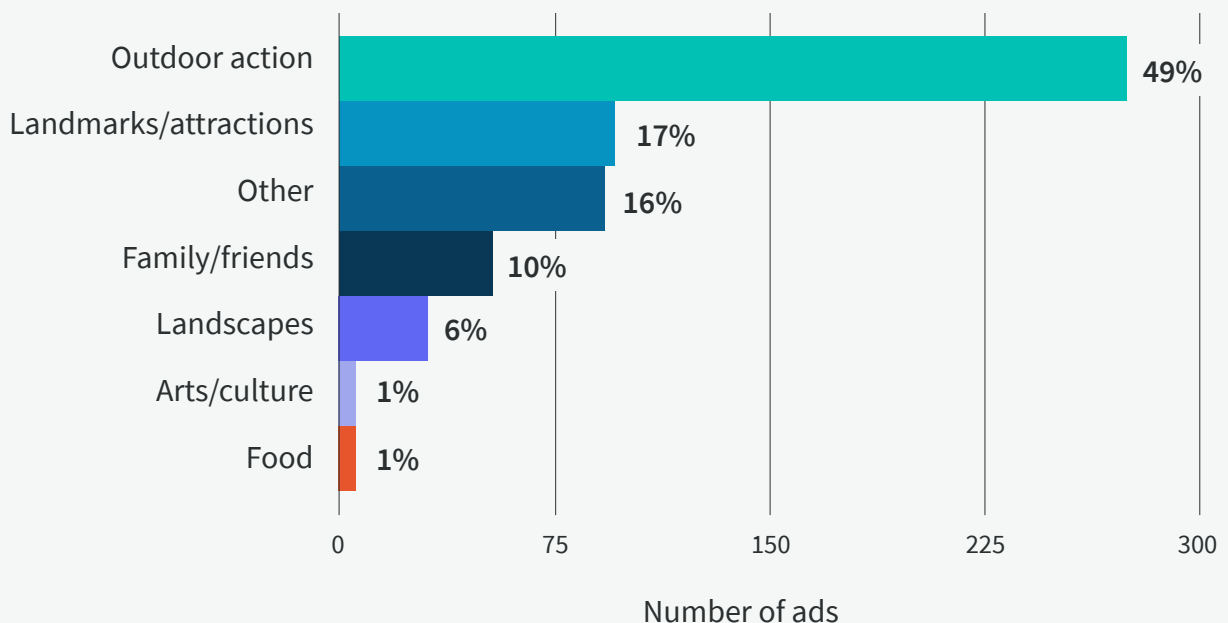

What CTAs were most common?

Like State DMOs, Tour Operators are using CTAs to drive audiences back to their website. Unlike DMOs, a small fraction also use sales-based messaging (“Book Now” to save 15%) and “other” CTAs, which include links to download guides or additional content.

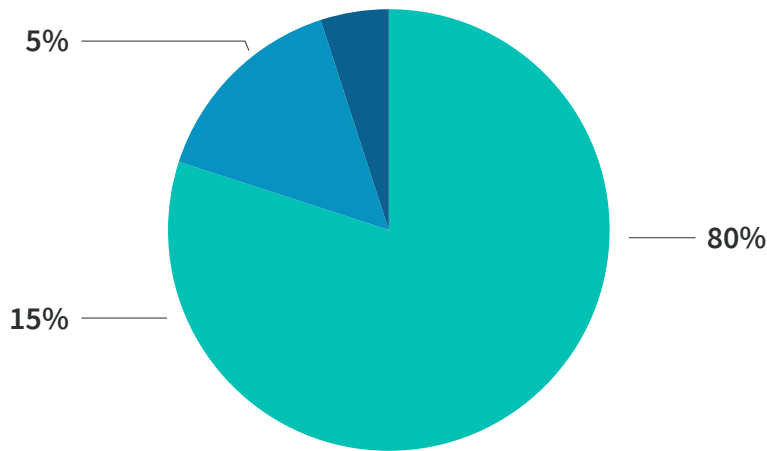

Which themes for visuals were the most popular?

Not surprisingly, most Tour Operators we analyzed used outdoor action imagery in their ads. (Notably, the sample did not include a high volume of operators offering food or history specific tours, which would have produced a different set of results.)

Analysis: How are Resorts and Hotels using Facebook Ads?

What ad formats are Resorts and Hotels using?

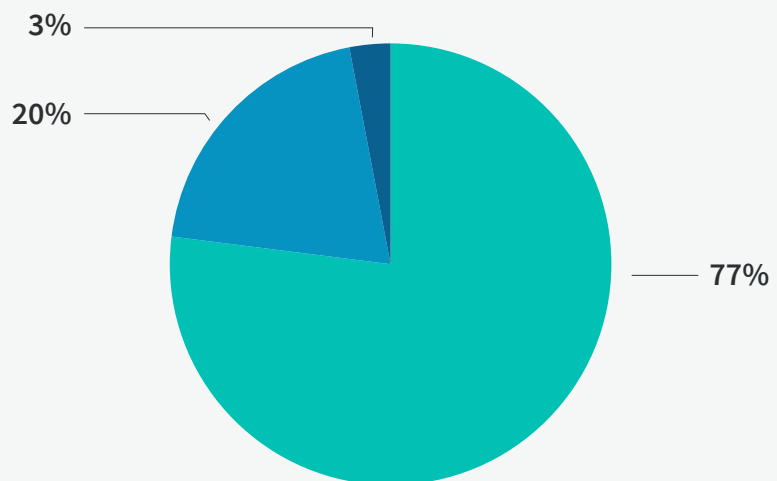

Between the three travel sectors analyzed, Resorts and Hotels were the highest users of single-image ads.

Single image Video Carousel

How many Resort and Hotel ads use UGC?

In-line with the findings from other sectors, Resorts and Hotels rely heavily on professional imagery in their Facebook ads. While the preferred choice is still professional imagery, this sector uses a significantly higher percentage of UGC than Tour Operators and State DMOs.

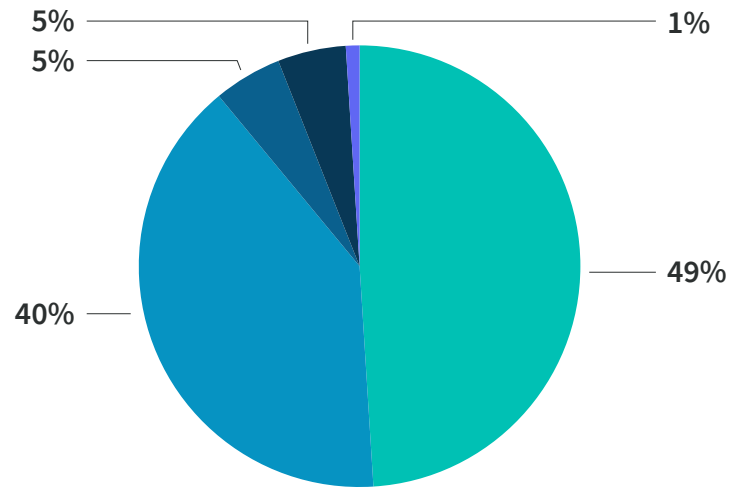

Professional
UGC
Mixed

What CTAs were most common?

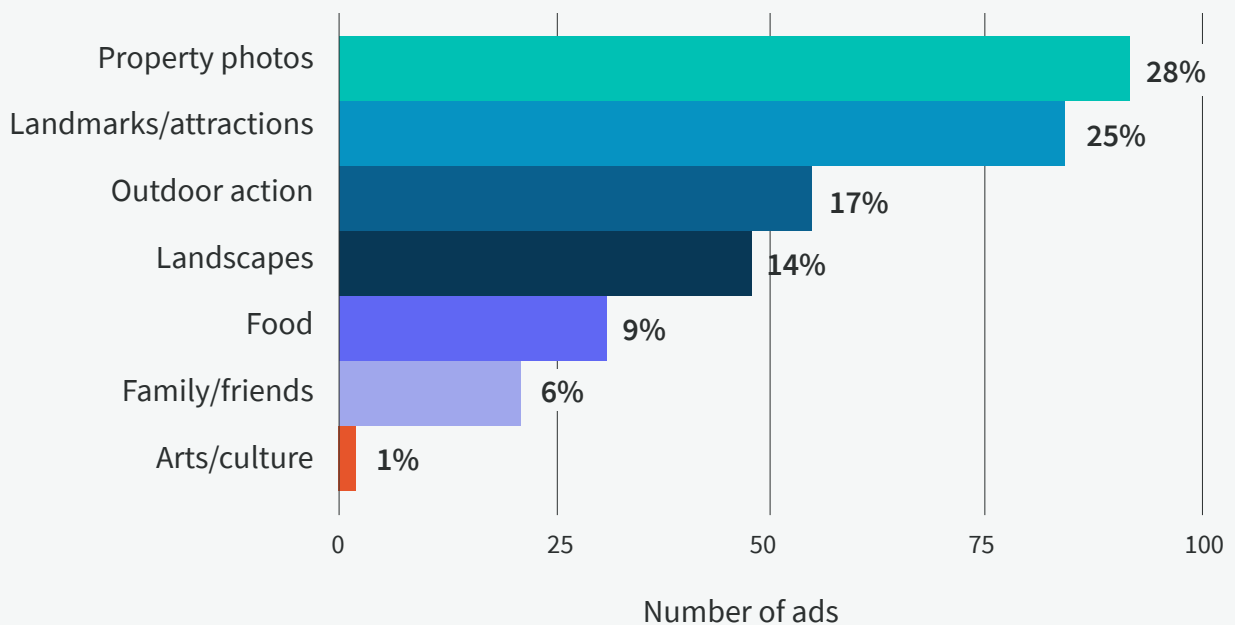

Most Resort and Hotel ads either drive people to their website, or advertise a specific deal or sale (Prepay and save 10%, for example) with a “Book Now” CTA.

- Website link
- Sale/deal
- No CTA
- Newsletter sign-up
- "Like" Facebook page

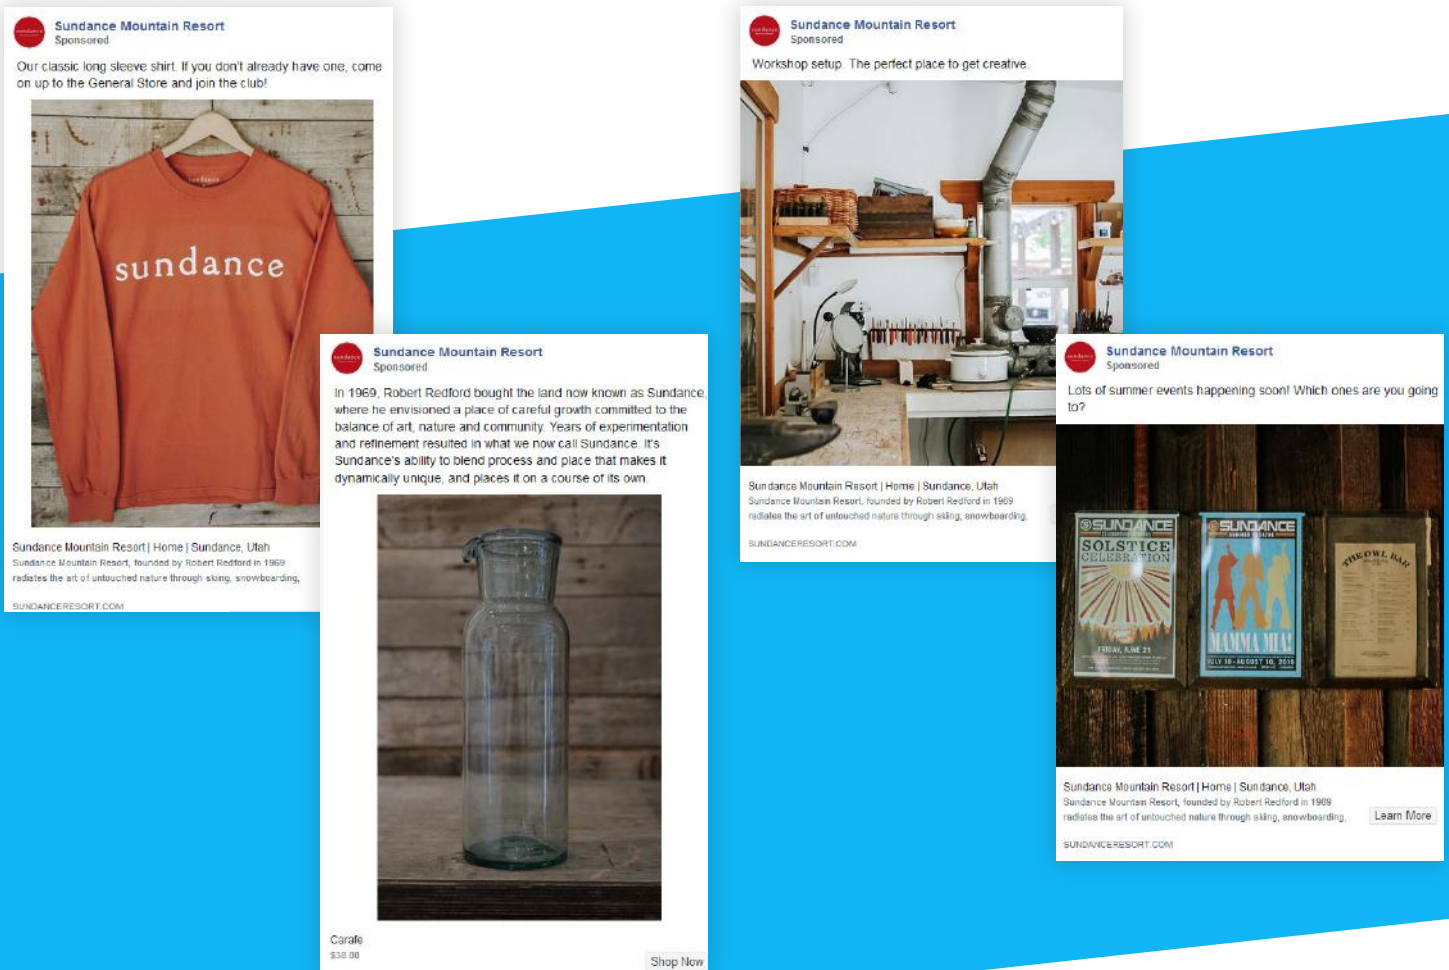

Which themes for visuals were the most popular?

The most popular visual theme for Resorts and Hotels was property photos. Included in property photos are visuals of rooms and other on-site amenities such as spas, restaurants, golf courses, meeting and conference spaces, wedding venues, and more.

3 noteworthy Facebook ad campaigns

Of the hundreds of ads we looked through, there were a few that stuck out to us. Read on to see why!

Sundance Resort

Sundance Resort, which was actually founded by actor Robert Redford, does an exceptional job with their single image ads. Here's why we liked them:

1. They know their target audience. Playing off their explicit ties to the popular Sundance Film Festival, they appeal to artists who want a "perfect place to get creative."
2. Rather than just marketing rooms or amenities, they market the destination, calling out summer events around the city. In the 12 weeks before a trip, travelers search 3X more for experiences than Resorts and Hotels². Marketing the experience around the resort allows Sundance to gain more awareness before travelers are even thinking about where to stay.
3. They play with marketing additional revenue streams such as the resort's merch. Check out the vintage sweater and carafe above.

² Think with Google, 2019

Xtreme Xperience

Xtreme Xperience, a tour operator that lets enthusiasts race exotic supercars, created an action-packed video ad that immediately grabs the attention of their target audience.

The video features both professionally-shot and user-generated visuals, allowing the audience to get a birds' eye view of the car and also feel like they're in the driver's seat. Within 15 seconds, over 7 different viewpoints are offered: the speedometer, rear view mirror, racetrack view and several close-ups of the driver.

The video is also personalized for every state, making it stand out even more.

Fun fact:
Brand engagement rises by 28% when consumers are exposed to both professional content and user-generated content³.

Visit California

California means something different to everyone. Climbers set their sights on El Capitan in Yosemite Valley, aspiring actors dream of “making it” in Hollywood, and everyday travelers seek novelty. These ads show that the folks at Visit California know their personas—the adventurers, dreamers, and novelty-seekers—and how to use timely content to catch their attention.

More than just compelling content, Visit California also relies heavily on influencer visuals, which are a good bet for maximizing engagement. Influencer marketing campaigns can earn $6.50 for every dollar spent⁴! These ads stand out to us for their diversity, their brand-power and their visual influence.

1 CHOOSING YOUR IMAGERY

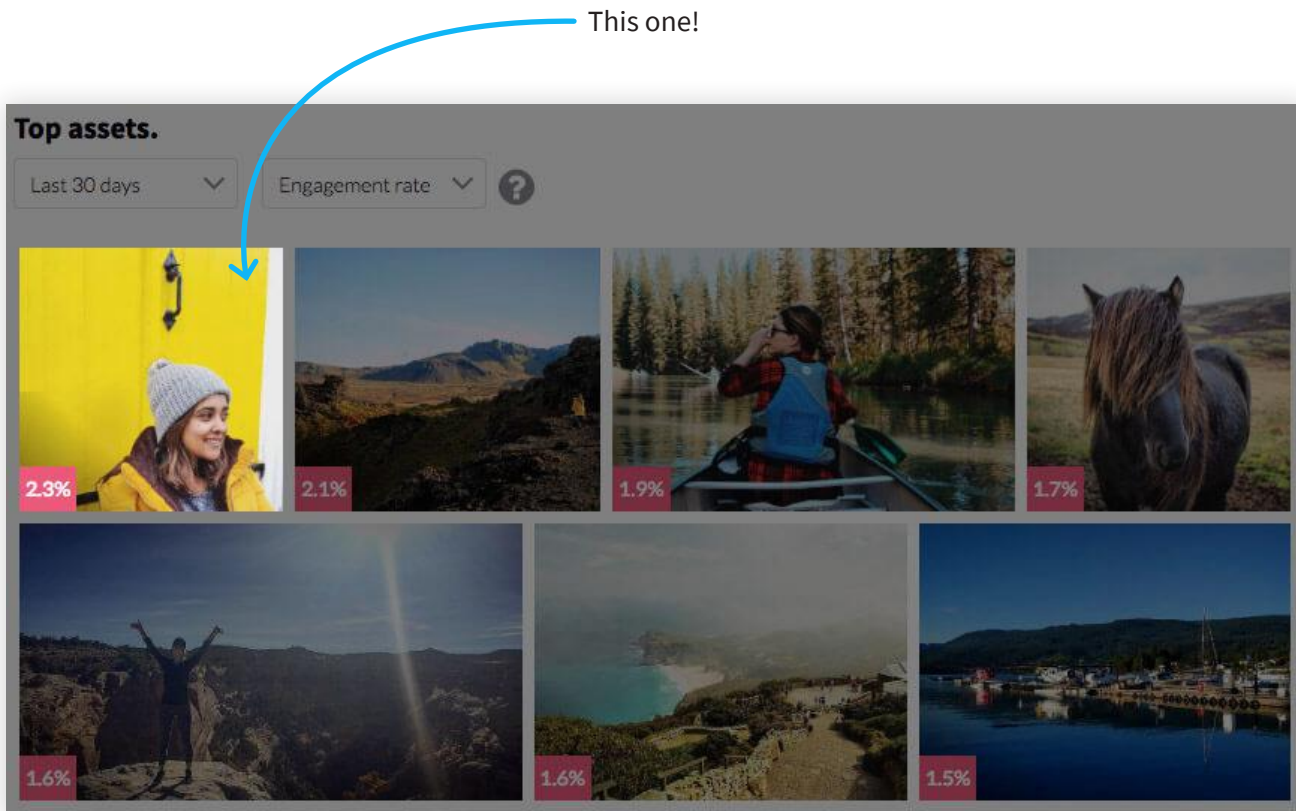

Easily surface the best visuals for your ad creative

Let's say bird-watching season is approaching, and you're looking for some compelling shots of regional birds use in your Facebook ad campaign.

But you have hundreds of bird photos in your collection, thanks to the avid bird-watching community's enthusiasm towards sharing photos. How do you know which ones are going to perform the best in an ad?

In CrowdRiff, it's as simple as a click. CrowdRiff's Smart Curation feature surfaces your most compelling content, as graded with our AI technology, to narrow down your choices with content recommendations.

CHOOSING YOUR IMAGERY

2 Find your top-performing visuals and repurpose them in your ads

Every photo or video that you feature in an image gallery on your website, CrowdRiff tracks engagement metrics for. You can see how many views vs. clicks each asset gets, to understand which images travelers gravitate towards — and therefore find your best bets for your Facebook ad creative.

So the next time you're trying to find the best photo to promote your destination's budding brunch scene, you can simply go into your Restaurants gallery insights and see which breakfast plate proved to be the most clickworthy.

CHOOSING YOUR IMAGERY

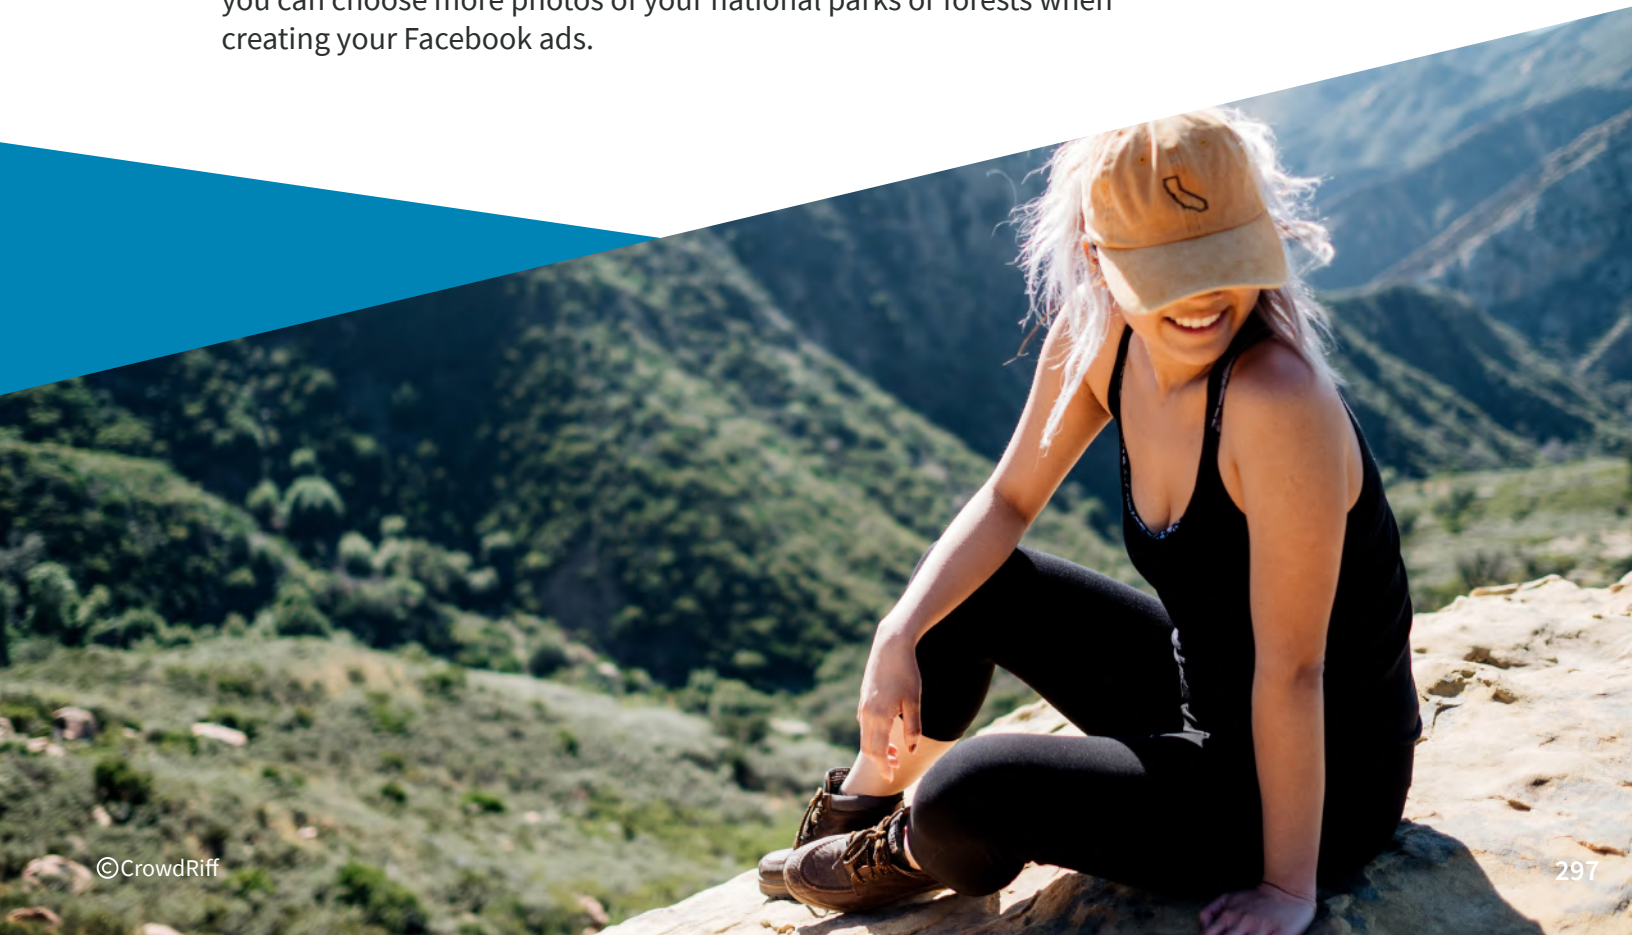

3 Pinpoint imagery that resonates with travelers in your target markets

Perhaps you're making a big push this year to target travelers from, say, California. You want to know what kind of visuals speak to this demographic, so you can find the imagery that'll get them clicking through on your Facebook ads.

Because of CrowdRiff's integration with Google Analytics, all this information is at your fingertips.

You can see which of your website galleries Californian web visitors are visiting the most, which ones they're spending the most time on, and even which ones have the most impact on whether or not they request a visitor guide.

You might find that your Californian visitors prefer browsing pictures of your outdoors themed galleries the most. With that insight in mind, you can choose more photos of your national parks or forests when creating your Facebook ads.

CHOOSING YOUR IMAGERY

4 Source imagery that showcases travelers from every demographic

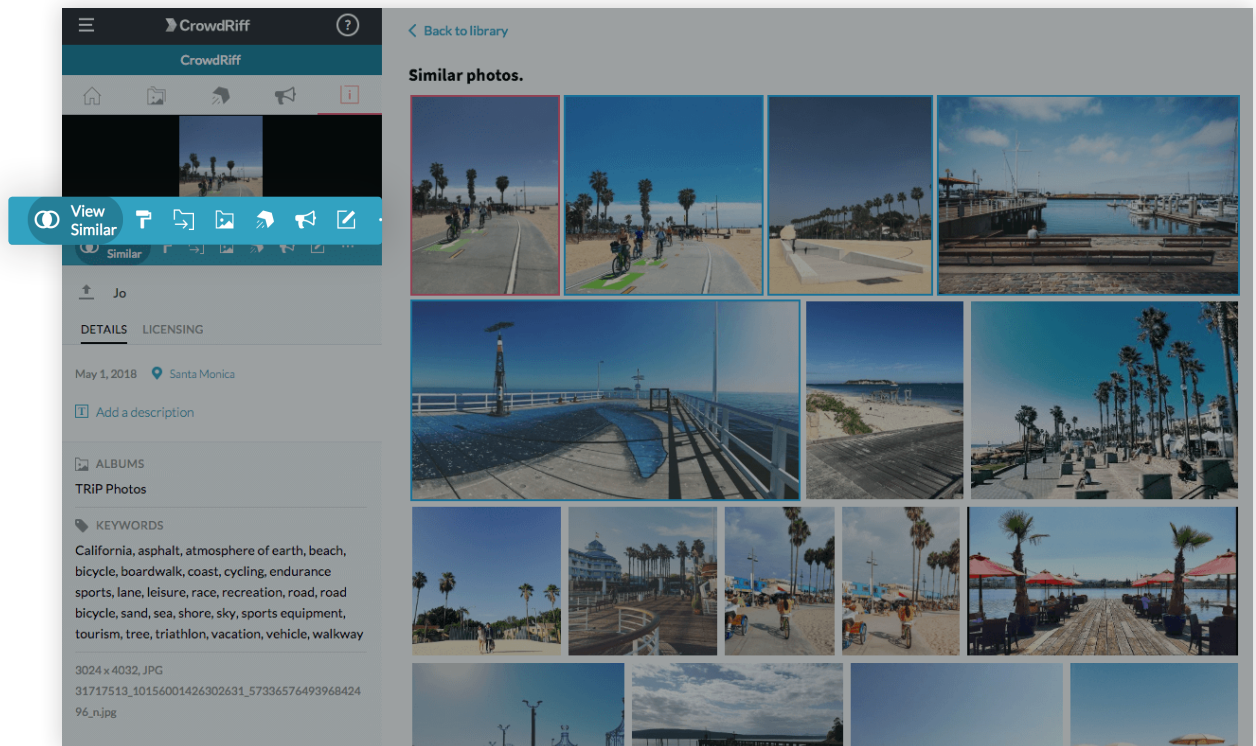

If you're marketing to people in Korea, imagine if you could show Facebook ads that showed actual Korean travelers having a blast in your destination. Imagine if you could do the same for any nationality.

Since CrowdRiff brings in all the content your locals and visitors are sharing in your destination, you're going to have a library of visuals at your fingertips that directly represents your audience. Using CrowdRiff allows you to get a more diverse range of imagery.

“We do marketing in a lot of specific countries with Destination Canada and our partners in [other] countries. Being able to give them [visuals] that specifically showcase people that have visited from those countries, being able to break that barrier, is invaluable.”

Social Media Coordinator,
Hornblower Niagara Cruises

CHOOSING YOUR IMAGERY

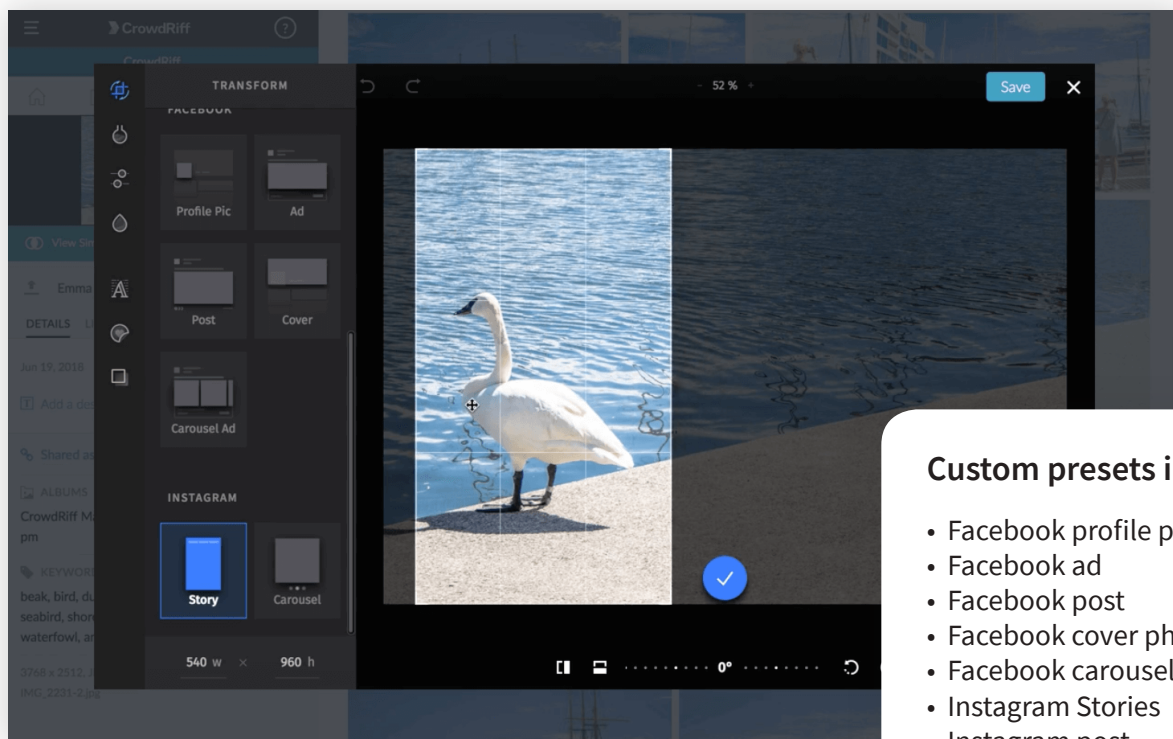

5 Source a cohesive set of campaign visuals in one click

Let's say you're running a beach-themed carousel ad campaign and you've found the perfect image that will anchor your ad. With a click of a button, CrowdRiff will find you additional photos similar to the one you chose, so you can run the campaign with a variety of photos that are thematically consistent.

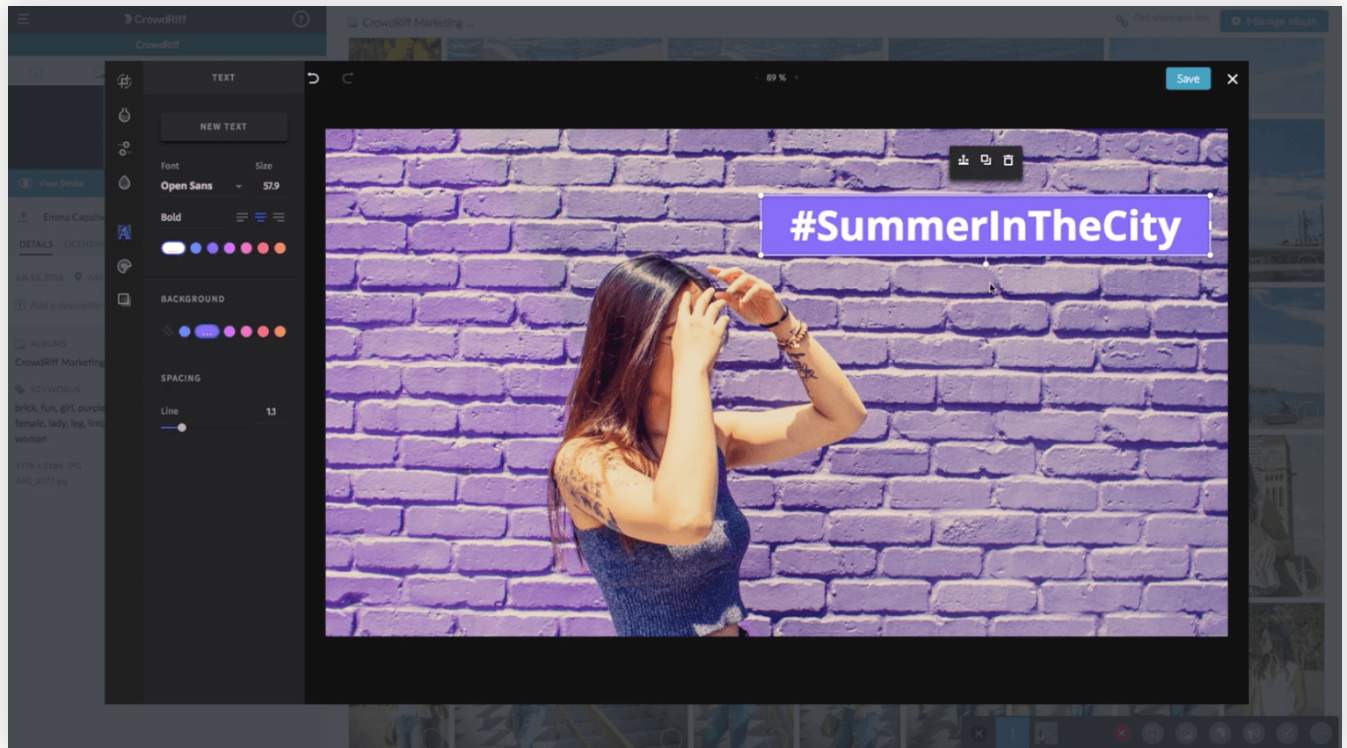

EDITING

6 Easily crop photos for Facebook and Instagram formats

It can be a real pain to resize and prepare photos for the different ad formats available on Facebook and Instagram. However, in CrowdRiff, when you find the photo you want, without having to leave the platform, you can crop your photos into custom preset formats in addition to any custom size you choose.

Custom presets include:

- Facebook profile picture
- Facebook ad
- Facebook post
- Facebook cover photo
- Facebook carousel ad
- Instagram Stories
- Instagram post
- Instagram carousel

EDITING

7 Add campaign slogans, hashtags, and messaging to your images

Often, an image needs an additional element to make it ad-ready. It could be your brand's tagline or an important call to action. Again without even having to leave CrowdRiff, Our simple interface makes it easy to add text, size it to the right dimensions and style text to fit your brand guidelines.

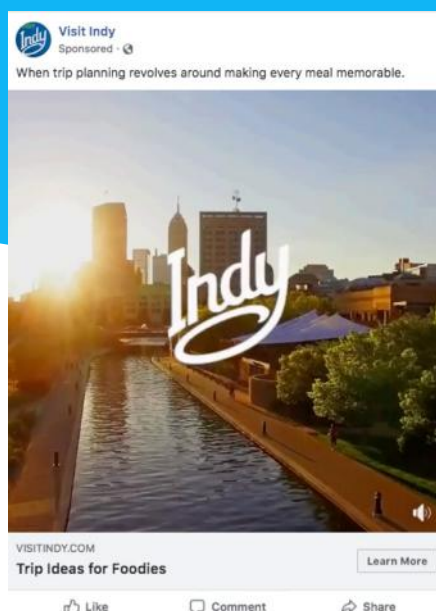

PUBLISHING THE AD

8 Drag and drop any visual straight into Facebook Ads Manager

Any image you have rights to in CrowdRiff can be added into your Facebook Ads Manager in seconds – without the hassle of downloading and re-uploading. Easily drag-and-drop photos and video creative directly from CrowdRiff into your Facebook Ads Manager using CrowdRiff's Sidekick for Ads extension.

Visit Indy

How Visit Indy achieved 3X stronger click-through rates on Facebook Ads with persona-based UGC videos.

The UGC-powered campaign resulted in:

1.15% 2.2% 3X

Facebook click-through rate

Facebook click-through rate with UGC video

Higher overall click-through rates

Today, all their active Facebook ads feature UGC imagery sourced from CrowdRiff.

“We’re not getting any more money for our advertising, but our annual goal keeps increasing. When we see UGC bringing in more clicks and impressions that is a direct reflection of what we’re going to choose to do in the future. We’re always looking to do more of what’s working, and right now UGC is working.”

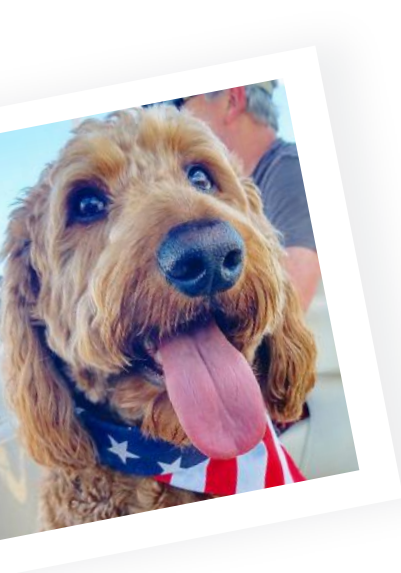

— Christine Zetzl, Senior Marketing Manager, Visit Indy

Background

Visit Indy is the official tourism marketing corporation for Visit Indianapolis. In an effort to do more with less, the DMO went in all digital for their ad strategy. They used rights-approved UGC to create custom video ads for each of their nine personas, and A/B tested different formats until they found one that hit home.

Key Benefits

- Getting rights to authentic imagery to use in ads in order to connect with each persona.
- Increasing ad engagement ads from travelers.
- Optimizing their ad buy towards what's working and have an endless stream of visuals to feed that.
